The agent of the concern that owns all patents pertaining to canceling or perforating machines, such as are prescribed by the internal Revenue Commissioner for the above stated purpose, said yesterday: The company of which I am the agent for this territory, and which owns all patents relating to perforating machines, is crowded with orders for these machines. The order of the Internal Revenue Commissioner is a regular bonanza to our concern, as it has a monopoly of the machine. There is no other concern here or elsewhere that can furnish these machines if you consider that every brewer and distiller in the United States and its possessions is compeled to get one or more of these perforating machines from us, you may realize the enormity of the business which comes our way through this order of the internal Revenue Commissioner. As the average price of one of the machines is $55, and as there are hundreds of thousands of breweries and distilleries in this country, you can figure out for yourself why our firm is unable to furnish all our customers with the machine by the lirst of this month, as ordered by Mr. Yerkes.

A Hearty Greeting to the President at the Exposition.

Crowds Listen to the Executive Speech on the Progress of Nations -The Heat Compels Mrs. McKinley to Return to the Milburn Home

BUFFALO, Sept. 5.-President McKinby spent practically the whole day at the Pan-American Exposition, his every movement being followed by many thounds of his countrymen, who were there see the sights and put the President n the front rank of attractions.

Country visitors, bearing lunch boxes, amped in front of the Milburn House early this morning to see the Presiden Mr. McKinley led his wife to the carriage at 10 o'clock. The Presidential party wer met at the Lincoln Park gateway by th Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth Regiments, United States Marines, and the Four-teenth infantry, which acted as military scort.
The President drove to the centre of the triumphal causeway, where he and Mrs. McKinley alighted and walked to the stand on the west esplanade, where he was to speak. The sun shene hot on the asphalt, but the crowd was so great es to be impassable.

While the President was speaking the heat and excitement was speaking the heat and excitement began to tell on Mrs. McKinley, and when the President had concluded she entered her carriage with her maid and nurse and returned to the Milburn House. She was unable to attend the luncheon given for her at the Women's Building. The President was escorted to the Stadium, where he reviewed the troops, and, that done, made a tour of the State and foreign buildings. He reached the New York State building at 1 o'clock and at-tended an elaborate luncheon. Tonight the President saw the illumination and viewed the freworks display on the lake. Tomorrow he will make a trip to the Falls. THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

In his address Mr. McKinley said in part:
"President Milburn, Director General Buchaffan, Commissioners, Iadies, and gentlemen; I am glad to again be in the city of Buffalo and exchange greetings with her people, to whose generous hospitality I am not a stranger, and with whose good will I have been repeatedly and signally honored. Today I have additione satisfaction in meeting and givditional satisfaction in meeting and giv-ing welcome to the foreign representatives ditional satisfaction in meeting and giving welcome to the foreign representatives assembled here, whose presence and participation in this exposition have contributed in so marked a degree to its interest and success. To the Commissioners of the Dominion of Canada and the British colonies, the French colonies, the republics of Mexico and of Central and South America, and the Commissioners of Cuba and Porto Rico, who share with us in this undertaking, we give the hand of fellowship and felicitate with them upon the triumphs of art, science, education, and manufacture, which the oid has bequeathed to the new century.

"Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement; they stimulate the energy, enterprise, and intellect of the people and quicken human genius. They go into the home. They broaden and brighten the daily life of the people. They open mightly storehouses of information to the student. Every exposition, great or small, has helped to some onward step. Comparison of ideas is always education and as such instructs the brain and hand of man. Friendly rivalry follows, which is the spur to industrial improvement, the inspiration to useful invention and to high endeavor in all departments of human activity. It exacts a study of the wants, comforts, and even the whims of the people, and recognizes the efficacy of high quality and low prices to win their favor. The quest for trade is an incentive to men of business to devise, invent, improve, and economize in the cost of production.

"This portion of the earth has no cause."

improve, and economize in the cost of production.

This portion of the earth has no cause for humiliation for the part it has performed in the march of civilization. It has not accomplished everything, far from it; it has simply done its beat and without vanity or boastfuiness, and, recognizing the manifold achievements of others, it invites the friendly rivalry of all the Powers in the peaceful pursuits of trade and commerce and will co-operate with all in advancing the highest and best interests of humanity. The wisdom and energy of all the nations are none too great for the world's work. The success of art, science, industry, and invention, is an international asset and a common gloty.

"After all, how near one to the other is every part of the world. Modern inventions have brought into close relation widely separated peoples and made them better acquainted. Geographic and poliwidely separated peoples and made them better acquainted. Geographic and poli-tical divisions will continue to exist, but distances have been effaced. Swift ships and fast trains are becoming cosmopoli-tan. They invade fields which a few years ago were impenetrable. The world's years ago were impenetrable. The world's products are exchanged as never before, and with increasing transportation facilities come increasing knowledge and larger trade. Prices are fixed with mathematical precision by supply and demand. The world's selling prices are regulated by market and crop reports. We travel greater distances in a shorter space of time and with more case than was ever dreamed of by the futhers. Isolation is no longer possible or desirable. The same important news is read, though in different languages, the same day in all Christendom.

"At the beginning of the nineteenth ent languages, the same day in all Christendom.

"At the beginning of the nineteenth century there was not a mile of steam railroad on the globe; now there are enough miles to make its circuit many times. Then there was not a line of electric telegraph; now we have a vast mileage, traversing all lands and all seas. God and man have linked the nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other. And as we are brought more and more in touch with each other, the less occasion is there for misunderstandings, and the atronger the disposition, when we have differences, to adjust them in the court of arbitration, which is the noblest forum for the settlement of international disputes.

of brewers and distillers yet who had been able to secure the prescribed perting machine, as the firms that mandiure them are overfilled with orders. If course, said Mr. Williams, "we are shed that it is beyond their power to age this, and we are convinced that by at the lith of this month they will all be been able to provide themselves with prescribed machine."

The interpretation of the concern that owns all agents of the concern that owns all signatures are prescribed machines, such as a prescribed machines, such as a second of the concern that owns all the such as a prescribed machine, and the such as a prescribed machine, an agent for this territory, and which owns all patents relating to perforating machines, is crowded with orders for these machines. The order of the Internal Revenue Commissioner is a regular bonanza to our concern, as it has a monopoly of the machine. There is no other concern here or elsewhere that can furnish these machines. If you consider that every brewer and distiller in the United States and its possessions is compelled to get one or more of these perforating machines from us, you may realize the enormity of the business which comes our way through this order of the Internal Revenue Commissioner. As the average price of one of the machines is $5, and as there are hundreds of thousands of breweries and distilleries in this country, you can algure out for yourself why our firm is unable to furnish all our customers with the machine by the first of this month, as ordered by Mr. Yerkes.

"Of course, this innovation in canceling the stamps is a great improvement over the old system of stamp and ink pad. This ink stamp cancellation caused no end of trouble to the Internal Revenue Bureau and loss to the Government. Every now and then it was discovered that stamps that had been used were washed and used again. There were regular firms that dealt in washed revenue stamps.

"This perforation machine does away with this condition, and is worth millions to our firm. That's the advantage of cornering the market, or of being a trust."

"Gentlemen, let us ever remember that our interest is in concord, not conflict; and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war. We hope that all who are represented here may be moved to higher and nobler effort for their own and the world's good, and that out of this city may come not only greater commerce and trade for us all, but, more essential than these, relations of mutual respect, confidence, and friendship which will deepen and endure. Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness, and peace to all our neighbors, and like blessings to all the peoples and powers of carth."

o visit the encampment, The Department of the Potomac is strongly advocating the election of General Sickles for the office of commander in-chief. The sturdy stand he took when the veterans were about to be relegated to an inferior position in the line of march on Inaguration Day, resulting in the old soldiers being finally selected as the escort of hours to the President, has rendered General Sickles exceedingly popular with the local Grand Army men, Capt. al Sickles would take the stump for McKinicy.

Whether there will be any resolution adopted voicing the desires of the Grand Army of the Republic relative to the administration of the Pension Office is a matter in which veterans of the District are evincing great interest. Captain Israel W. Stone has stated that he favored silence on this point for the reason that the Administration had promised to remove Evans, and would probably do so in due time.

Among other candidates for the position of commander-in-chief are Ell Torrence, who has been judge advocate of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Thomas W. Stewart, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Torrence is in line for the honor, as he has already served the organization in one high position. His war record is good, having served throughout the entire conflict.

high position. His war record is good, having served throughout the entire conflict.

Mr. Stewart has a large following. However, the fact that he served in the Federal army but three months and was never during that time outside of his native State, is a consideration which will act somewhat to his detriment.

There are a number of matters of interest to the members of the Grand Army of the Republic concerning the Department of the Potomac, which will come up for discussion at the National Encampment. The Women's Relief Corps will also have some matters to dispose of in the nineteenth annual convention of the Women's Relief Corps, which will be held at the same time as the encampment.

Headquarters will be established at the Hollenden Hotel. Most of the veterans and members of the Women's Relief Corps will secure quarters here. On Wednesday evening the officers of the Department of the Potomac and the Women's Relief Corps will hold a joint reception there. The affair promises to be a largely attended one.

A large number of those who have planned to attend the encampment will return to Washington via Buffalo; in order to visit the Fan-American Exposition, Raliroad lickets for the excursion provide for the possibility of this side trip. In consequence of this added opportunity a large number will go to Cleveland who might not otherwise have done so.

The delegates to the encampment will leave for Cleveland on Sunday morning next. They are Newton Ferre, Abraham Hart, Charles Matthews, and Lawrence Wilson.
